SR. #	Tender Reference Number	Item Description	Qty	Earnes Money/Bid bond
1	KE/TRANS/01/26	Feasibility Study of Islanding Scheme for NGC and KE to Prevent Blackouts The study shall specifically analyze the impact of partial and total disconnection between the Northern and Southern regions of Pakistan, as well as the disconnection of K-Electric from the National Grid, including critical interconnection points at 500 kV and 220 kV levels. Considering the past blackout events, emphasis shall be placed on winter peak & off-peak operating conditions (power system operating with low inertia), with average wind generation on bar. The consultant shall undertake a comprehensive technical assessment of the network with the objective of evaluating system security, stability, and islanding capability under defined scenarios. The scope of the study covers winter peak and winter off-peak operating conditions for the study year 2028, considering average wind generation, and focuses on system behaviors historically associated with large-scale blackout events. The consultant shall review the existing transmission network and operating practices of the power system, with particular emphasis on North-South transmission corridors and KE-NGC interconnection points at the 500 kV/220 kV levels. Based on this review, representative base-case system models shall be established and validated to reflect the agreed study conditions and system split scenarios.
